The Future Is Peace

A public conversation with peace activists

Aziz, a Muslim Palestinian, and Maoz, an Israeli Jew, are the least likely of allies.

Both have lost family to the conflict between their people. Both have known the bitterness of righteous anger. Instead of revenge, they chose a different path; forging a bond of brotherhood when the world expected them to be enemies.

Together, they underscore the power of dialogue to create paths to reconciliation, even when it seems impossible. Abu Sarah and Inon's powerful New York Times-bestselling book, The Future is Peace, boldly challenges a fractured world to pursue change.

What can we do in this time of dire strife and bloodshed? Is talking about peace enough?

Inon and Abu Sarah propose a radical plan for bringing their people together and building a peace that can last.

Guided faithfully by Quaker testimonies on Peace and Equality, we invite people of all backgrounds to join us to hear their stories, consider difficult questions, and explore what building peace asks of each of us today.
